

WILD BUFFALO RUNS AT LARGE

Takes Liberties With Property of Ranchers South and West of the City.

ESCAPED FROM HERDERS

WHO WERE TRYING TO TAKE HIM TO ANTELOPE ISLAND.

Reports have been coming in town the last couple of days from the farmers and ranchmen west and south of the city that a wild buffalo is running things to suit himself. Farmers have had a glimpse of him as he dashed through their fields, stampeded a herd of cattle here and there and then calmly took his station at some convenient hay stack for a big feed. One farmer telephoned in yesterday that if some one did not come and capture him he would have the animal locked up in the pound.

It is a buffalo all right and a wild one, which escaped from the island improvement company's employ one night last week and since that time this company has been searching the surrounding country to capture him.

The buffalo is one of two wild bulls imported from Montana by the island improvement company to vary the strain of blood in the herd now located on Antelope island. The pair arrived in Salt Lake by express and last Thursday night they were loaded on a wagon and the trip to the island started. On the way out a storm overtook the party and as they reached the edge of the lake the wagons overturned and it was impossible to proceed. Not daring to leave the buffalo stranded over night the crates were opened and the four employees started to "herd" the wild buffalo across the four miles of lake, using the work horses as saddle horses.

Trouble started immediately. One buffalo started south and one north and the horsemen began a wild ride in the night to head them off. The buffalo which was finally "roped" and then began a tug of war to get him across the lake to the island. He would immediately charge the rider and horse and a few yards would be gained before the buffalo balked again. These tactics were kept up all night and by daylight the animal was across and turned loose to find the herd on the island.

But the other buffalo started south and all efforts to locate him have failed. The company has had his riders out, but the buffalo keeps out of sight and goes forth at night to have his sport with the unsuspecting farmers. The last heard of him was a phone message last night in which the trapper declared he would have him put in the pound. He received word back to go ahead and "round" him and all would be well, the company being willing to pay the necessary fee to get hold of the buffalo.

Demon Rum is the cause for divorce alleged by two unhappy wives who filed divorce suits in the district court Tuesday.

Emma L. De Witt, one of the principals in a Farmington marriage, April 29, 1907, says that Howard De Witt's habits have incapacitated him from attending to his business; that he has been continuously intoxicated for weeks, in fact has not been free from the influence of nineteen months. There are no children and no alimony is asked.

Eldis Graham says that John Graham, whom she married at Salt Lake on Sept. 3, 1901, has been guilty of habitual drunkenness and intemperance for more than a year and has provided for the necessities of life. She asks for a divorce and the custody of their three children, aged 7 and 4, and 1 month, with attorney's fees and permanent alimony of $35 a month.

COMMERCIAL CLUB CUP FOR BEST BARLEY EXHIBIT

Much interest is being evinced in the third session of the distilling congress, which is to be held at Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 23, 24 and 25. Fisher Harris, secretary of the Commercial club, is executive secretary of the congress, but on account of other engagements and the amount of work which he now has on his hands in connection with the G. A. R. encampment, Mr. Harris will be unable to attend the convention at Cheyenne.

The Commercial club of this city has offered a handsome silver loving cup for the best product of barley in an irrigated region.

On one side of the trophy is the inscription, "Third session Trans-Missouri distilling congress, Feb. 23-25, 1909, Cheyenne, Wyoming." On the other side the inscription is, "Presented by the Commercial club of Salt Lake City, Utah, to the best of the best twenty-five pounds of barley grown in 1908 on non-irrigated land."

The indications are that there will be a large attendance at the congress at Cheyenne from all parts of the west.

GENTLE GRAFTER ABROAD WITH FAKE SUIT GAME

Induces Women to Buy Cloth in Expectation of Getting a Bargain Outfit.

The United States postoffice department, through W. E. Cockran, inspector at Denver, has sent out a warning to the people of the western states to be on the lookout for R. Jepson, or a person representing an alleged firm known as the National Cloth House of Detroit. Particular warning is sent out for the information of women employees of millinery and dry goods shops.

Jepson has been working in Kansas City, Denver and other cities of the middle west, but at the present time his location is unknown to the federal officers. He uses the mail to some extent in transacting his business, and for this reason the matter has been taken up by the officers of the postoffice department.

On arriving in a new town, Jepson at once begins his work of "beating" women clerks out of various sums of money. He goes to the large department stores, where a number of women clerks are employed, representing himself to be agent for "The National Cloth House of Detroit." He tells the women that by buying cloth from him it will be possible for them to get a suit or coat much more cheaply than by buying the garment or suit here. The samples of the cloth are displayed and the unsuspecting woman immediately takes one of the bargain suits, and complies herself on being able to secure a new spring gown at such a low price.

Within a few weeks after the cloth has been selected, paid for and the suit ordered, the victim gets a letter from Jepson informing her that an error was made in sending an additional sum of money is sent at once the suit cannot be furnished. Usually the persons send the additional fee, and sometimes she gets in return a suit of inferior quality. Most of the cases, however, result in the person getting next at all.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

The University Dramatic club is practicing day and night for the production of "The Cabinet Minister," which will take place at the Salt Lake theatre Friday and Saturday. The club is the youngest and perhaps the most popular of the university musical organizations, and the concert promises to be an extremely enjoyable event. After the program the floor will be cleared and an informal dance will take place.

The Engineering society met yesterday afternoon and planned a number of lectures by prominent engineers. The society decided to put its picture in the year book and J. O. Helms and A. Whitmore, who had two of the leading papers in engineering, and T. C. Woodbury and Thomas Watson have been selected to take their part.

The university team that will represent local school in the annual interstate debate, which is to be held at Boulder, had a practice debate with a team selected from the other debaters of the school at the city and county building last night. The men debated on the commission government question, which will be the issue of the debate with Boulder. The regular team is composed of Edward Watson, E. H. Burgess and Richard W. Young, Jr., and on the picked team were James Carlson, Ralph Hartley and L. Hammer.

The Order of the Gleam met yesterday in the girls' reception room in the library building. Papers were read by Hazel Edwards, Dorothy Thompson and Grace McDonald.

The Scribblers' club met last evening at the Alpha Pi fraternity house. A number of interesting papers were read by the members.

The Mandoon and Guitar club will give its initial concert in the assembly hall Friday evening. This club is the youngest and perhaps the most popular of the university musical organizations, and the concert promises to be an extremely enjoyable event. After the program the floor will be cleared and an informal dance will take place.

Extensive preparations are being made for the observance of Washington's birthday. At a faculty meeting it was decided to have the program during chapel next Friday morning, and a committee of professors was appointed to look after the details. The anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln will be celebrated in connection with the Washington birthday program.

Kansas Prepares to Turn Out in Force for Encampment.

Word comes from W. A. Ogden, department commander of Kansas, to Colonel F. M. Surlett, executive director of the G. A. R. encampment, that that state will have the largest representation of any state at the encampment here next August. In Kansas they think that Commander-in-Chief Nevius has secured the best railroad route that has ever been given the grand army of the old army, and that the attendance will tax the citizens and comrades of Utah to accommodate the numbers and every house and hotel will be filled to overflowing. There are still some 15,000 old soldiers left in Kansas and, while they will not all come, thousands of them will be here.

ing their theses which will be presented to the graduation committee in the near future. Some of the boys have completed a number of interesting experiments. D. Dickert and L. Cummins, electrical engineers, have made some valuable tests with different kinds of incandescent lamps and have compiled some interesting data. Harrison Woodbury and A. Muir have just finished an examination of the north-eastern end of the Quirch mountains and have made a report of the geology of that district.

KNOX IS OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION

President of National Bank of Republic Is Unqualifiedly Against Plan.

DETRIMENT TO BUSINESS

WOULD MEAN LOSS OF MILLIONS TO UTAH IN INVESTMENTS.

"I am unqualifiedly opposed to prohibition," was the declaration of Frank Knox, president of the National Bank of the Republic, when asked what his views were on the proposed legislation now pending before the Utah legislature yesterday.

"For one reason, I think it will have a most depressing effect on business. Most large and important enterprises are ready to be proceeded with; those interested are waiting to see whether this bill will pass and if it does they will not invest a dollar. Thus, if it passes, it will mean the loss of millions of dollars in the way of new buildings, improvements, investments in manufacturing and other enterprises. In other ways it will have a detrimental effect.

"Another reason is, it will diminish the revenues of the city, which are much needed, without any accruing benefits. The manufacture and sale of liquor have been engaged in for practically all time, as far as we know, and it is impossible to make laws to govern people's appetites.

Disastrous in Kansas.

"I, as a boy, was living in Kansas when that state adopted the prohibition law, and the result was disastrous. It demoralized and paralyzed business all over the state. It stopped the growth of every town and city in the state, while it did not stop the sale and use of liquor. The drug stores sold liquor almost openly on prescriptions, making them practically saloons. Every drug store in the state was practically turned into a saloon—and people who had never used liquor to any extent seemed all at once to feel that they must have it. The majority of men use liquor to some extent, most of them moderately. With a prohibition law it degrades their manhood. Instead of being able to go openly and purchase it, they are compelled to resort to questionable methods to procure it.

Iowa's Unenviable Experience.

"It also resided in Iowa when that state adopted prohibition. The result to the growth of cities and business expansion was disastrous in Kansas. Neither state has a city within its borders that would be worthy of the name of a metropolis or business center of any magnitude. For years there was litigation in Iowa and bitter contention between the prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists, until the law was modified and there was a return to the proposition of high license.

Remedies Are Suggested.

"My own idea is that the traffic should be regulated and controlled by adequate laws and that a high license should prevail. The masses of the people will have what they want, and no law that can be passed will prevent them from procuring liquor. It is certainly better to have the traffic properly regulated, so that those who wish it can buy it openly and also to have the traffic properly regulated.

Concluding the interview, Mr. Knox referred to a visit he paid to France this year, where everyone has wine at his meals and there is prosperity and contentment in every part of that land. Mr. Knox also cited the falling off there would be in the consumption of grain with prohibition a law, a fall in price, possibly something having a direct bearing on the farmer and the producer generally.

RESCUE PARTY BACK.

Perilous Trip After Family Snowbound in Mountains.

(Special to The Herald.)
Logan, Feb. 15.—Sheriff N. W. Crookston and party, who went out last Thursday to rescue the five children of Rudolph Neiderhauser, who were snowbound thirty miles back in Logan canyon, returned today after a trip that well-nigh exhausted them all. They were able to get up the canyon only twice, and secured a team, and from there on had to use snowshoes. The mild weather made snowslides certain and therefore they dared not follow the road, but had to keep along the mountain tops. Friday night darkness came and the party was unable to get up the canyon, and they were forced to build a fire and sit by it till morning. On Saturday night they reached Neiderhauser's and secured the children, started back Sunday morning, leaving him there.

They followed the road returning, the snow having hardened, but had great difficulty in getting over immense snowdrifts thirty miles back. They were not so fortunate in getting back as they were on their way out, and they were forced to build a fire and sit by it till morning. On Saturday night they reached Neiderhauser's and secured the children, started back Sunday morning, leaving him there.

He will remain in the east for a while to witness the inaugural ceremonies at Washington, and will return to Salt Lake some time about the middle of March. The money for the bonds will be placed to the city's credit in a Chicago bank.

J. T. RALEIGH, street supervisor, has turned his office in the city and county building into a wheelwright's exhibition. All sorts and descriptions of wheels are shown that he may be prepared for the committees on Thursday evening, when he makes his fight for the changes in the wide-lane ordinance. Raleigh has entered with spirit into the fight being made by the teamsters to have the ordinance amended to permit of three and one-half inch tires being used.

A PERMIT was issued at the office of the city building inspector yesterday to Evans & Evans, who will construct a two-story flat building at 207-209 Fourth avenue, to cost $12,000, and to contain twelve rooms.

TONIGHT a benefit concert will be given at the Twenty-second ward meeting house under the direction of Professor Hugh W. Dougal and participated in by his advanced pupils. EMERGES FROM POOL AND DIES

Dr. Henry Hopkins of Oregon
Is Suddenly Stricken at Sanitarium Baths.

Just after emerging from the pool in the Sanitarium baths, and while his wife and two daughters-in-law were sitting chatting in a near-by room, awaiting his arrival to escort them to dinner, Dr. Henry Hopkins of Eugene, Ore., yesterday afternoon succumbed to heart disease.

Dr. Hopkins, who was 63 years old, and a veteran of the civil war, was traveling with his wife and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Mary Hopkins, to Salida, Colo., where his five sons are now operating a mine, and with such success that they had sent for the father and mother to come there and make their future home. The party of three arrived in Salt Lake from Oregon yesterday morning and stopped here to visit another daughter-in-law, Mrs. Martha Hopkins, the wife of Fred Hopkins. The latter but lately left for the Colorado mining town, and since then his wife has been employed as an attendant in the Sanitarium baths.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Hopkins, after visiting his daughter-in-law at the baths, decided that he would take a plunge. While in the pool his wife, his two daughters-in-law and Mrs. H. Tucker, another daughter-in-law, sat in the gallery watching him swim about.

While he was paddling about Mrs. Hopkins called down to her husband that she did not think that he could swim the length of the pool, and Dr. Hopkins accepted what he seemed to consider a challenge. Striking out, he went to the end of the pool, then started back, but, apparently exhausted, stopped midway and clambered up one of the stairways and rested on the concrete edge of the pool. The women at this time retired to an adjoining room. When they returned it was to notice a crowd of attendants and bathers standing around the dressing room occupied by Dr. Hopkins and to receive the first intimation of the death.

From the time the women left the gallery, while Dr. Hopkins was sitting on the edge of the pool, until he was found dead, no one saw him. It was, however, that he had arisen from his seat on the stairway of the bath and had gone to his dressing room and started to remove his bathing suit. Men in the adjoining bathing rooms heard the fall and called one of the attendants, who, after trying to open the door, gained entrance to the room by crawling through the transom, to find the dead body as the barrier to the door.

It was a pitiful scene when the life companion of the stricken man was made to realize her loss, and with the forced realization that her husband, whom she had looked on but a few minutes before, was lying dead.

The body was removed to O'Donnell's mortuary. The sons in Colorado were notified last night, and it has been decided that the interment will take place in Salt Lake, and under the direction of the G. A. R.

INHUMAN CRUELTY.

Charles Castle Arrested for Treating Horse in Brutal Manner.

Yesterday Charles Castle, a horse trader residing at 23 East Seventh South street, was arraigned before Judge Bowman under charges of cruel and inhuman treatment of a horse. A plea of not guilty was entered and the hearing was set for next Friday. Castle is accused of having tied a rope on the tongue of a horse that had become balky, fastening the end of the rope to another horse, and driving the latter off so fast that it tore off a part of the tongue of the balky horse. Castle denies the charge, but a number of witnesses have made statements which led to the issuance of the complaint. Under a warrant Castle was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Smith and, upon arraignment, was held under $500 bail. This was furnished later and Castle is at liberty.
